

CH Legal Moment Ken Fraser #1

[phone ringing]

Receptionist: Cohen Highley

Announcer: And now the Cohen Highley Legal Moment on AM980.

Announcer: I'm here with Ken Fraser from Cohen Highley Lawyers. If you are a child support payor and your child goes to university, do you have to continue paying?

Ken Fraser: Yes. However, the amount of child support that you are required to pay, and the way that it is calculated, will depend on a number of factors.

Announcer: Such as?

Ken Fraser: In addition to looking at your income and the number of children, there will also have to be a consideration of how many months the child lives at home, the child's expenses while away from home and the child's ability to contribute to their own costs. This applies not only to university, but to most forms of post-secondary education.

Announcer: Understood. So say the child is away at school for eight months and at home for four months...

Ken Fraser: While each situation will depend on its own particular circumstances, in some cases a decision may be made to average child support payments over the course of the year.

Announcer: Thanks Ken. This has been the Cohen Highley Legal Moment.
